Weekly Market Update

Primary market environment: Primary market issuance slowed this week. The summer break is becoming increasingly noticeable. Fed officials Daly and Waller argue for two more rate hikes this year. China's central government sees no risk of deflation in the second half of the year.

Primary market barometer

SSAs

The majority of the issuances in the SSA segment were again well received. The EU order book was 18 times oversubscribed. However, the summer holidays are likely to increasingly limit activity.

Covered Bonds

The two new issuances this week went very well. Aareal Bank's benchmark stood out with a 6x oversubscribed order book. In terms of maturities, the 3 year range remains the sweet spot. With the start of the summer break, primary market activity is likely to be lower in the coming weeks.

Senior Unsecured

Despite both summer time and the start of the quarterly reporting season, four new issuances in EUR benchmark format have hit the market so far this week. The blackout period however is likely to keep activity low, even though the market remains receptive.

The positive signals clearly predominate in our Risk Trend Indicator. The recent positive sentiment for senior unsecured bank bonds has strengthened further.

SSAs

The SSA segment opened on Tuesday with an EU issue - the 2052 (2.5%) was topped up. The order book was oversubscribed by more than 18 times at over EUR 70bn. The limited size of the issue from the outset certainly contributed to the very high oversubscription. However, the issue also showed that there is demand at the long end of the curve, provided the issuer can compensate for the inversion of the curve. At the same time, the state of Baden-Württemberg entered the market with a 6-year floater (EUR 500m, no grow, local currency), which was well received. On Thursday, the State of Brandenburg placed a 10-year benchmark (EUR 500 m, WNG). The bid-to-cover ratio was good at 2 and the final spread of MS+1 bp was in line with the target.

Shortly after the end of the first half, we would like to take stock: In the first half of 2023, 154 deals were issued with a volume of around EUR 228bn. The figures for the same period last year (EUR 126/196.7bn) were exceeded, but the comparable figures for 2021 (EUR 156/239.3bn) were just missed. Some issuers are already well advanced with their full-year funding plans. KfW, for example, has already raised EUR 54bn in the first half of the year, almost two-thirds of its annual funding target. In our view, it will therefore be difficult to beat the 2021 result (EUR 382 bn) in the current year.

Outlook: In our view, the primary market will gradually become quieter due to the summer holidays.

Covered Bonds

Aareal Bank entered the primary market on Tuesday with a EUR 500 million (WNG) covered bond. For its third issue this year, the issuer chose a 3-year tenor, which had already been very successful the previous week. The issue hit the sweet spot of demand. Once the re-offer spread was set, the order book doubled again to EUR 3bn by the close of the book. The bond was priced at a final spread of MS+13bps, 3bps tighter than at marketing. The new issue premium was 10 bps. On Wednesday, Landesbank Berlin followed with a sub-benchmark (EUR 250m, WNG, 4 years). This issue was also successful, with the final spread fixed at MS+10bps, 3bps tighter than the benchmark.

„Swap spread valuations continue to drift sideways on moderate secondary turnover. For now, the balance of sustainable supply and opportunistic demand seems to be in place. With 10-year Bund yields having broken through resistance at 2.50% (currently 2.61% for February 33 and 2.64% for the new August 33 Bund) and with outright levels at short maturities also elevated, the demand side seems to be getting a bit bolder again. The short maturities in particular are once again the sweet spot!“

Comment from the Helaba trading floor

Outlook: The primary market continued to be receptive recently, especially in the short maturities. Given the summer break, issuance is expected to be rather low in the coming weeks. There are currently no mandates for next week.

Chart of the Week

With the start of ECB tightening in early 2022, spreads started to reassess and widen steadily. The lack of demand from the ECB and the resulting demand gap appears to be currently being filled by banks (Treasuries and trading books). The question of whether the end of spread widening has been reached at current levels cannot be answered conclusively. In our view, there is still some room to the upside. A higher than expected primary market supply in the second half of the year could contribute to spread widening. However, with the widening so far, a large part of the repricing should be completed.

Senior Unsecured

This week, three issuers took advantage of the favourable market environment to offer senior unsecured bank bonds in EUR benchmark format: Spain's CaixaBank issued a dual tranche with 6 and 10-year maturities of EUR 1 bn and EUR 0.5 bn, respectively, Norway's DNB Bank placed EUR 1 bn with a 5-year maturity and Canada's Toronto-Dominion Bank came to the market with a volume of EUR 1 bn and a 2-year maturity.

The volume of new issuance, all of which is non-preferred, totalled EUR 3.5 billion, which we consider quite respectable in view of the quarterly reporting season and the summer season. Long-dated transactions also did well, with the order books for shorter maturities seeing noticeably more demand.

DNB Bank reported its Q2 2023 results on Wednesday - ahead of the US banks, which start the reporting season today - and surprised with a profit of NOK 9.5 billion. The increase in net interest income continued and net fee and commission income was also extremely strong. Next week, the Scandinavian banks Nordea, SEB and Swedbank will publish their results. Attention is likely to focus on the development of net interest income, credit quality, new lending business and margins.

Outlook: The primary market for senior unsecured bank bonds continues to be encouragingly receptive, even if activity will be lower in the coming weeks due to the summer vacations and the upcoming quarterly reporting season. High maturities and strict bail-in capital requirements remain fundamental drivers of primary market activity this year.

“Despite high temperatures, the markets are still active and the classic summer slump is not yet in sight. The central banks are preparing their next interest rate steps for the end of July and perhaps also in September and the stock markets are reacting more nervously at their still high levels. Today, the US banks JP Morgan, Citigroup and Wells Fargo start the reporting season, and it will become clear how the Fed’s interest rate hikes will affect the economy and what impact this will have on bank balance sheets. Yields have been falling again recently, while the iTraxx indices have been able to quickly narrow to new lows.”

Leisure tip for the weekend: Museum Folkwang (Essen)

The Folkwang idea, coined by Karl Ernst Osthaus at the beginning of the 20th century, comprises three central guidelines: the dialogue between the arts and cultures, the museum as a place of exchange and cultural education, and the unity of art and life. Conscious of its own museum and collection history, the Museum Folkwang carries this idea into the present and the future.
